REPORT.

To the Class: —

This Report is necessarily shorter than the last, for it covers a period of but four years, while the last covered eight.

The Report will help to show how far the Class has acquitted itself with credit to its Alma Mater.

It is submitted without further comment.

ALFRED D. CHANDLER,
Class Secretary.

HARVARD COLLEGE.

CLASS OF 1868.

TALBOT JONES ALBERT. Discontinued his connection with the United States District Attorney's office, in Baltimore, on Oct. 1, 1878, and has since practised law at his own office in Baltimore. He is unmarried. His father, Hon. William J. Albert, died March 29, 1879.

Address: 27 North Calvert Street, Baltimore, Md.

WILLIAM BROWN ALLEN. In 1878 he gave up his position as Principal of the Morse Grammar School, in Somerville, Mass., and went to Dudley, Mass. May 1, 1878, he began the study of law in the office of Williams & Thayer, Worcester, Mass. Has not yet been admitted to the bar. He was married at Concord, N. H., Sept. 4, 1878, to Sarah J., daughter of Richard J. and Mehitable French, of Concord.

Address: Dudley, Mass.

JAMES BARR AMES. Since the last Report has been teaching law at the Harvard Law School, Cambridge, Mass. Was elected Professor of Law in June, 1877, and transferred to the Bussey professorship of law in 1879. Ames's Cases on Bills and Notes is nearly printed, and will be published by Little, Brown, & Co., this summer. He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and of the St. Botolph's Club, of Boston. He was married June 29, 1880, to Miss Sarah Russell, daughter of Mr. George Robert Russell (deceased) and Sarah (Shaw) Russell, of Boston.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

ALBERT HOLMES AMMIDOWN. Continues the practice of law in New York City. Is unmarried.

Address: 206 Broadway, New York.

HORACE BACON. April 17, 1876, he entered the office of Mr. S. Van Rensselaer Cruger, real estate agent, 160 Fulton Street, New York. In June, 1880, he entered the office of Henry Talmadge & Co., bankers, 39 Pine Street, New York. Is unmarried.

Address: 39 Pine Street, New York City.

GEORGE FERDINAND BECKER. Up to Aug. 1, 1879, he was in charge of the mining department of the State University of California. Upon the organization of the United States Geological Survey, he accepted the position of "Geologist-in-charge of the mining geology of the Great Basin," the country between the Sierra Nevada and Rocky Mountains from the British Possessions to Mexico. He was also lately appointed "Special Agent of the Census" to collect the statistics of mineral industries west of the Rocky Mountains. He is also preparing a memoir of the geology, etc., of the Comstock lode.

In 1878 he visited the Paris Exposition, and travelled in Austria, Germany, France, England, and Wales. He has also travelled extensively in the United States. At present, with his staff of geologists and statisticians, his quarters are at Virginia City, Nevada.

He was married, June 17, 1879, to Alice T., daughter of Dr. A. T. and Mrs. H. F. Watson (née King); who are of New York City, but live in Dresden, Saxony.

In 1878 he published a pamphlet on "Education," designed as a defence of what is called the Higher Education, which appeared as a Bulletin of the University of California. In the same way were published some speculations on the periodicity of the rainfall in California. The Smithsonian Institution is now printing his "Digest of the Published Atomic Weight Determinations;" and the State Department, a joint report, by Mr. J. D. Hague and Mr. Becker, on the exhibit made by the mining industries at Paris. His mathematical discussion of the reduction of weighings to vacuum has appeared in America and in German chemical journals.

Address: Berkeley, California.

WILLIAM FREDERICK BENNETT. Has devoted the past eight years to travel to cure hemorrhages of his lungs. His heal this now restored. He passed the winter of 1876–77 in California; the winter of 1877–78, in Georgia; the summer of 1878, in Europe; the winter of 1878–79, at Marietta, Ga.; and the winter of 1879–80, half in Nassau, Bahama Islands, and half in Marietta, Ga. Is unmarried.

He has translated a book of five hundred pages from the German, on Urine, and is the author of various papers read before medical societies, and subsequently published. Is unmarried.

Address: 89 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

*JAMES HENRY DAVENPORT. Born in Roxbury, Mass., April 18, 1846. Died in Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 26, 1878, at the age of 32.

He was the son of James Davenport, a painter, and of Sarah Adams Wiswell. James Davenport was the son of Joseph, born Aug. 18, 1773, died May 28, 1849, who was the son of Benjamin, the son of Joseph, the son of John, the son of Thomas Davenport, who was the first of that name to come to this country, having settled in Dorchester in 1636 to 1640, where he joined the church in 1640, became a freeman May 18, 1642, and died May 19, 1685. It seems that the family name was taken in the town of Davenport, Cheshire County, England, in 1086, during the reign of William the Conqueror.

Dr. Davenport was fitted for college at the Roxbury Latin School, where, with his classmate, Daniel Henry Davis (H. U., 1868; ob. Sept. 18, 1869), he enjoyed the superior advantages of a preparation under that excellent instructor, Mr. William C. Collar. Davenport was a member of the Natural History Society; of the Π Μ, and of the Φ Β Κ. In his junior year he was awarded the first Bowdoin prize for an essay on the "New Chemical Philosophy." His college chum was A. H. Ammidown. His rank, for the entire college course of four years, was tenth, at eighty per cent.

The following obituary notice, by B. F. Cotting, M. D., is from the "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," Jan. 2, 1879: —

"Obituary. — Died in Roxbury, Dec. 26, 1878, James Henry Davenport, M.D., thirty-two years eight months, a graduate of Harvard University in arts and in medicine, and of Columbia College, New York, in medicine.

"The career of this young physician is deserving of more than a passing notice; and we avail ourselves of the unpublished words, written for another purpose,* of a friend who knew him well: —

"'Never in strong health, Dr. Davenport had been for years so ill with pulmonary disease as frequently to be considered in immediate danger by experts, who years ago repeatedly assured him that he could not live from one season to the next. Against such odds he fought manfully, always aware of his condition, but never despairing.

"'At the medical school he was noted for application, thoroughness, and great progress. Graduating with distinction in New York, as well as at Harvard, he was at once appointed assistant physician at Deer Island Hospital, where his devotedness was a subject of general remark. Through his efforts, important changes were made there in the interests of the sick poor.

"'Leaving Deer Island, he established himself at the South End of Boston, where he was gaining quite a professional reputation, and was considered one of the most promising physicians of his age. But the previously smouldering disease all at once developed, and obliged him to abandon general practice. His courage, however, did not fail him; energy he never lacked.

"'He had already written valuable articles for medical journals. Becoming acquainted with the family physician of his wife's family,† —a noted and reputedly successful operator for hernia, a peculiarly reticent person, who had not till then found an interpreter.—Dr. Davenport took up the study of hernia, which he could do without the exposures incident to general practice. He obtained from the operator his methods of treatment; repeated the operation until he felt confident of its value; investigated the physiological and pathological processes on which its success depended; and embodied the results of his labors in a volume entitled 'The Cure of Rupture,' a work of 196 pages, 12mo,‡ noteworthy for its literary and scientific excellence. This he accomplished while in such poor health that his professional brethren were in continual wonder how it was possible for him to sustain the constant struggle for existence merely.

"'Through college life and after, Dr. Davenport's chief delight had been in studies bearing upon magnetism, electricity, and thermo-electricity. To these studies he devoted all his available leisure. He kept abreast if not in advance of all the recent discoveries; and a chief trial in his departing strength continued to be the disappointment he felt in not being able to carry forward experiments which he was confident would surpass in results any yet attained.

"'In yielding to the inevitable, Dr. Davenport ever showed an enduring fortitude, an uncomplaining spirit, an unshaken faith, and a resigned content worthy of all admiration.'"

Dr. Davenport's children are William Bacon, born Nov. 30, 1874, died Oct. 5, 1876; and Mary Pauline, born Sept. 3, 1877. His wife survives him.

As a Mason, he was a member of the Eleusis Lodge of Boston. He was buried at Mount Auburn, Dec. 29, 1878.

*DANIEL HENRY DAVIS. Born in Roxbury, Mass., Sept. 5, 1844. Died at his father's residence in Roxbury, Sept. 18, 1869, at the age of twenty-five. See last Report.

† Dr. George Heaton, who died July 1, 1879.

‡ Published by H. O. Houghton & Co., Boston, 1877.

JOHN WARE DENNY. Jan. 1, 1879, he retired from business, having been a partner in the firm of Denny, Rice, & Co., commission merchants for the sale of wool, in Boston. His residence since the last Report has been in Boston and in Milton, Mass.

Address: 268 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

CHARLES FLETCHER DOLE. Removed in June, 1876, from Portland, Me., where he had been living since 1873, to Jamaica Plain, Mass., where he was installed as minister of the First Congregational Society of Jamaica Plain, and where he now remains.

His children are, James Drummond, born Sept. 27, 1877; and Katherine, born July 29, 1879.

Address: Jamaica Plain, Mass.

CHARLES WILLIAM DURHAM. Continues the occupation of civil engineering, and is also a steam-boat captain. He is "always going up and down the Mississippi River; is in the United States service, having charge of various works of importance on the Upper Mississippi River, and also of the snag boat 'General Barnard.'" He is a Mason and a Knight Templar; and he now weighs 210 pounds.

His son, Charles Brackett Durham, was born Nov. 22, 1878.

Address: Rock Island, Ill.

JAMES PHILLIPS FARLEY, Jr. Has continued to practice law in Boston. Was married May 15, 1876, at Brookline, Mass., to Miss Mary Eliot Wells, eldest daughter of the late Hon. John Wells and Sophia Dwight Wells, of Brookline. A son, John Wells Farley, was born June 15, 1878. Was a trustee of the Brookline Public Library from 1877 to 1880.

Address: 23 Court Street, Boston, Mass.

ALDEN BRADFORD FARNHAM. Has continued to live in New York City. Served eighteen months on the staff of the Charity Hospital, and was for four months interne at Maternity Hospital. Is Assistant Surgeon at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary; and has recently opened an office at New Rochelle. He is a member of the Harvard Club, the University Club, and the Manhattan Club,—all of New York City. Is unmarried.

Address: Manhattan Club, 96, 5th Avenue, New York City.

CHARLES OLIN FILES. Has continued a practising physician at Portland, Me. His travels have been "flying visits to Boston, New York, Philadelphia, St. John, and Halifax." He was elected a member of the School Board in Portland for two years, in March, 1880.

Address: 14 Brown Street, Portland, Me.

*JOHN McKENZIE CAMPBELL FISKE. Born in St. John, N. B., March 19, 1847. Died in St. John, N. B., July 4, 1877, at the age of thirty.

He was the son of Cyrus Kingsbury and Isabel Hodges (Boyd) Fiske. The ancestor from whom all of the American Fiskes derive their lineage was Robert Fiske, of Laxfield, England, who lived in Queen Mary's reign. He had three sons: William, Jeffrey, and Thomas. Their sons and grandsons, seven in number, came to New England about 1635, and settled in Massachusetts; three in Watertown, three near Wenham, and the seventh in Haverhill. As no exact records have been kept in the family, the line cannot be traced which connects these Pilgrims with his grandfather. The latter was born in Worcester, Mass., Nov. 9, 1777, and was married in 1798 to Dorothea Wellington, moving to Heath, Mass., in 1800. There the father of our classmate was born in 1820; and in 1842 was graduated at the Berkshire Medical Institution. After studying dentistry, he settled in New Brunswick, in 1845, the year of his marriage.

Dr. Fiske's ancestors on his mother's side were obliged to leave Scotland on account of their allegiance to "Prince Charlie," the second Pretender, and settled in Nova Scotia. From that Province his grandfather Boyd moved to New Brunswick in 1813. His mother's grandfather, Errol Boyd, married Jane Wilson, sister of Alexander Wilson, the celebrated American Ornithologist.

He lived and was educated in St. John, being fitted for college at the grammar school of that city, under the tuition of Messrs. Hutchison and Manning. At school he received five prizes: a first prize in 1859, two second prizes in 1862, and two first prizes in 1863 and '64.

He was a member of the Christian Brethren Society, acting as librarian for three terms, from the beginning of the Junior year to the second term of the Senior year. He was also a member of the Harvard Cricket Club.

He was married in St. John, Thursday morning, June 15, 1876, at half-past six, to Miss Emma S. Skinner of that city. His wife survives him.

He was a dentist by profession. See last Report.

His death is attributed to cholera, superinduced by excitement attendant upon the great fire in St. John, his death occurring about ten days after that calamity.

DAWES ELIOT FURNESS. Oct. 1, 1877, he withdrew from the firm of Furness, Brinley, & Co., of Philadelphia, and on Jan. 1, 1879, left Philadelphia for Foxburg, Penn., where he became agent for the Fox estate. He is in the oil business, and also holds the following positions: Secretary and Treasurer of the Foxburg, St. Petersburg, & Clarion Railroad: Secretary and Treasurer of Emlenton, Shippenville, & Clarion Railroad: Secretary and Treasurer and a Director of the Foxburg Bridge Company; Secretary and Treasurer of the Richland & Perry Bridge Company; Director in the Foxburg Water-Works; Treasurer of the Foxburg Oil Works; and a School Director. Is unmarried.

Address: Foxburg, Clarion County, Penn.

*JOHN BALDWIN GILMAN. Born in Chicago, Ill., July 5, 1847. Died at his home in Montpelier, Vt., May 18, 1873, at the age of twenty-five. See last Report.

MALCOLM SCOLLAY GREENOUGH. Is the General Assistant to the Agent and Treasurer of the Boston Gas-Light Company. In the summer of 1878 he went to Europe to examine the electric light. He has prepared a number of papers on technical subjects connected with his profession. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers; of the American Association for the advancement of Science; and of three American and one French Society of Gas Engineers. Since Jan. 1, 1879, he has been a member of the Common Council of the city of Boston. He has two children: a son, Malcolm Scollay Greenough, Jr., born July 31, 1876; and a daughter, Ethel Greenough, born May 30, 1877.

Address: 24 West Street, Boston, Mass.

JAMES GRIER. Has continued as a practising attorney in Pittsburg, Pa. Is unmarried.

Residence: Oakdale, Alleghany County, Pa.

Address: P. O. box 23, Pittsburg, Pa.

FREDERICK ROBERT HALSEY. Has been abroad every summer, except that of 1879, for the past eight years, and intends to be abroad this summer. His mother died Feb. 24, 1878.

Address: 22 West Fifty-third Street, New York City.

JOHN HILLIS. Has continued practising law in Boston. July 14, 1877, he went to Europe, visiting Great Britain, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Italy, and France. He was elected a Representative to the Massachusetts Legislature for the year 1877, for the Twenty-seventh Middlesex District. Is unmarried.

Residence: Maynard, Mass.

Address: 5 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

CHARLES FREDERICK HINCKLE. Continues as a practising attorney in Philadelphia. Was married in Philadelphia, May 20, 1875, to Katie E. Chambers, daughter of James Henry and Margaret Chambers. A son, William Hinckle, was born August 26, 1877; a daughter, Hinckle, born , died .

Residence: 1112 Wallace Street, Philadelphia.

Address: 716 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

EDGAR HUIDEKOPER. Is engaged in farming at Meadville, Pa., and has imported a fine herd of Holstein cattle from North Holland. In September, 1879, was elected Treasurer of the Meadville Theological School. Is unmarried.

Address: Meadville, Pa.

ARTHUR HUNNEWELL. Continues in the banking firm of H. H. Hunnewell & Sons, Boston. A daughter, Margaret F. Hunnewell, was born May 17, 1878.

Address: 87 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

*CHARLES SEDGWICK HUNT. Born in Canaan, Litchfield County, Conn., April 7, 1842. Died at his residence, No. 102 East Thirty-fourth Street, New York, Oct. 15, 1876, at the age of thirty-four.

His ancestors upon his father's side came to America in the seventeenth century, and settled at Andover and other places in Eastern Massachusetts. His father's name was Charles Hunt, son of Amos Hunt. His father was President of the Housatonic Railroad from 1853 to 1866. His mother's maiden name was Pamela Bates; she died at Canaan, Conn., in August, 1842; she was a daughter of Jonathan Bates and Pamela Sedgwick. The Sedgwicks fought in the English Revolution which brought in the Commonwealth, in the American Revolution, and in the war which ended negro slavery in America.

He lived in Canaan till May, 1848, when he attended the boarding-school of Ashbel Fuller, at Kent, Conn., to October, 1855; and from that time till September, 1856, the boarding-school of James Sedgwick, at Great Barrington, Mass. From September, 1856 to March, 1859, he was a student at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., during which time, from July to October, 1857, he made a voyage to Fayal in the United States sloop "Preble." In 1859–60 he was a student in the Agricultural School of Samuel W. Gold, at Cornwall, Conn. From April to September, 1860, he lived in Bridgport and Stratford, Conn. From December, 1860, to May, 1861, he published a weekly newspaper at Goodspeed's, East Haddam, Conn. In the winter of 1861–62 he was a railroad agent at Falls Village, Conn.

In July, 1862, he entered the United States navy as Third Assistant Engineer, and in September was ordered to join the United States steam-sloop "Juniata" at Philadelphia: from which place he sailed to Hampton Roads, and subsequently to the West Indies, capturing three prizes while he was attached to her. He resigned in July, 1863, "because I found myself constantly seasick, though I was never sick of the sea." During the academical year of 1863–64, he studied at Phillips (Andover) Academy, entering Harvard in September, 1864. He was a member of the Harvard Natural History Society, of the Φ Β Κ, and one of the editors of the "Harvard Advocate." His college chum was James Grier.

After his decease, his valuable library was sold in New York, comprising a choice collection of rare and valuable works on political economy, finance, currency and banking, history, biography, and general literature: among them choice copies of Tooke, Ricardo, Adam Smith, Overstone, McCulloch, D'Avenant, and others, and a few rare classics.

The following obituary notice appeared in the "New York Times," Oct. 16, 1876:—

"It is with sincere regret that we announce the death of Mr. Charles S. Hunt, one of the editorial writers on the staff of the 'Times.' Mr. Hunt had been in infirm health for several years, and last winter he endured a long sickness, from which he never fully recovered. He resumed his professional work sooner than was judicious, perhaps, as he was not aware of the serious inroads which illness had made upon his constitution. Early in September he gave up his work once more, being overcome by a complication of disorders, which finally assumed the form of paralysis of the digestive organs. Latterly, inflammation of the brain supervened, and, after several days of extreme suffering, Mr. Hunt passed away tranquilly yesterday afternoon.

"Mr. Hunt was born in Litchfield County, Conn., April 7, 1842, and was therefore about 34 years of age at the time of his death. For one so young he had experienced many vicissitudes and had accomplished much valuable work. He received a commission as acting midshipman, and entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1856. After two years of study he resigned his commission, and in 1863 entered Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and after the usual preparatory course of instruction he was admitted to Harvard College. Upon the breaking out of the Rebellion he was commissioned Acting Master in the navy. He served with credit on the United States steamer 'Juniata,' under Captain C. S. Boggs. When he resigned from the navy in order to complete his studies at Harvard, some years later, his zeal and abilities were officially recognized. He was graduated at Harvard in the class of 1868, and immediately after leaving college came to New York, seeking a field for the exercise of his well-trained powers. His first engagement was on the 'Sun' newspaper; but he soon after accepted a position on the city staff of the 'Tribune.' He became associated with Mr. John F. Cleveland, whose death has lately occurred, and engaged in some of the work which had been carried on by that lamented gentleman. Mr. Hunt served as Albany correspondent, as compiler of financial and political statistics and returns, and as an editorial writer upon cognate topics. In all these departments, in which accuracy, exactness, and clearness of statement were necessary, he distinguished himself, and won the confidence and esteem of his associates. In February of the present year he joined the editorial staff of the 'Times,' his special field being the discussion of matters relating to public finance and political economy.

"As a writer, Mr. Hunt was remarkably vigorous and lucid. The abstruse questions which he sometimes handled were always treated with remarkable clearness, directness, and freedom from mere technicalities of expression. As a man, he was singularly mild, gentle, retiring, and pure in manners and conversation. His honesty and unaffected simplicity won him many friends; and his life was so blameless in all its relations that none who knew him will contemplate his loss without a pang of heartfelt regret. In the management of the affairs of a great daily newspaper, such a man is invaluable; and yet he must be content to occupy his place in the profession, satisfied with the impersonal relations which he sustains to a vast constituency of readers. Mr. Hunt filled his niche with conscientious and painstaking energy, with no thought beyond that of doing well whatever he had to do. His influence in public affairs was necessarily subtle, but none the less considerable; and it may be truly said of him that he was candid, honest, and absolutely just. In his social relations he was amiable, genial, and thoroughly loyal. Speaking ill of no man, and free from all selfishness and self-conceit, he found in the quiet of his home his highest enjoyment. He was a student, a lover of art and music, and disposed only toward the most elevating of pleasures. It is one of the unsolved problems of this mortal life, that one who might have been so widely useful, and who had so many admirable qualities of disposition, should have been long hampered by disease, and be so early taken away from human activities. Mr. Hunt leaves a wife, but no children. The funeral will probably take place to-morrow, after which the remains will be removed to Connecticut for burial."

CLASS SUBSCRIPTION FUND.

The purpose of the Class Subscription Fund is to afford an income to be used for the general wants of the University, and it is expected that every graduate will subscribe to this fund, be his contributions large or small. In some instances, Classes have given to this fund their separate Class Fund.

The total amount subscribed to this fund by the Class of 1868 has been $2,195. No subscriptions have been made by the Class since the publication of the last Report, in 1876, where the amounts subscribed are given in detail.
